

As we head into summer, I wanted to introduce something new from Rubin Family Law: RFL Quarterly.

This newsletter is designed as a light, thoughtful touchpoint with colleagues and referral partners we value. No legal jargon or deep dives into statutes, just a snapshot of what's happening at our firm and a few practical observations from the family law world we navigate together.

Summer naturally brings transitions, and it felt like the right moment to launch something to keep us connected throughout the year.

Wishing you a safe and relaxing Fourth of July.

Best Regards,

Kevin Rubin, Esq.

Reflecting on Four Years of Rubin Family Law

This year, Rubin Family Law celebrates four years of serving Georgians.

Since then, our firm has continued to grow through relationships, referrals, and supportive colleagues. We remain incredibly grateful for the continued trust of Georgia's legal community and look forward to growing those relationships in the future.

Back-to-School Custody Schedules

As August approaches, families often begin revisiting custody schedules, logistics, and communications before the school year begins.

Common questions include:

- Does the custody schedule still work with school activities?

- Are transportation responsibilities realistic?

- Are communication expectations clearly defined?

Even when arrangements have worked well in the past, clarifications or adjustments are often needed as the year starts.
